G. O. P. SELECTS HAMILTON MAN ON ONE BALLOT

All Quiet in State House of Representatives After Leader is Named.

REGULARS RULE

Cleveland Man Is Chosen Floor Leader.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 10.—All was serene today among the Republican membership of the State House of Representatives, which chucked its factional differences in a caucus showdown yesterday and kept a tight grip on the control of the House at the impending legislative session.

Failing to stop the election of Rep. Arthur Hamilton, Lebanon, for the speakership on the first poll, the insurgency, which had threatened disruption, fizzled into a mere peep. Its members fell in line with the majority and held intact the House party organization.

Hamilton's nomination, which was made unanimous after he had garnered 36 votes out of 70 on the first poll, is equivalent to election. He will be installed when the Senate and House complete their organization upon convening Monday, Jan. 5.

NAME CLEVELANDER
Lester J. Abele, of Cleveland, was chosen G. O. P. floor leader on the second ballot. By acclamation the caucus decided to retain the following officials and employees, who served in the House during the legislative session two years ago:

John P. Maynard, of Lima, clerk; Edward W. Hughes, of Columbus, deputy clerk and parliamentarian; Dr. Alfred Robinson, Ironton, sergeant-at-arms; Miss Effie V. Gregg, of Malta, enrolling clerk; Mrs. Ella M. Scriven, of Cuyahoga Falls, recording clerk; Joseph Baylor, of Cleveland, engraving clerk; Samuel M. Fletcher, of Lima, first assistant sergeant-at-arms; J. M. McAllister, of Marysville, second assistant sergeant-at-arms, and Thomas L. Calvert, of Selma, third assistant sergeant-at-arms.

Andrew W. Gordon, of Logan-co, was nominated for journal clerk and John P. Mardis of Athens, for message clerk. Gordon is a son of Rev. J. E. T. Gordon, who for many years represented Logan-co in the House. Mardis is a son of Representative S. K. Mardis of Athens.

ON FIRST BALLOT

Hamilton was elected on the first ballot, just as he had predicted. But the margin of victory was much narrower than he had expected. Shortly before the caucus he claimed a majority of around 50 votes. As it was he got 36, just enough.

Two ballots were necessary to select the floor leader. The first ballot resulted: Abele, 29; Representative Horace S. Keifer, of Springfield, 24, and Representative William Weir, of Warren, 17. Because a minimum minority of 36 votes was necessary for a selection, the second vote was taken resulting: Abele, 39; Keifer, 22; Weir, 9.

All of the 70 Republican house members-elect were present. Representative Ferd J. Bing, of Sandusky, ranking member of the House, served as chairman and Mrs. Sarah E. Hyre, one of the state representatives from Cleveland, acted as secretary, of the caucus.

BOOKS ARE STOLEN FROM RESIDENCE

Police were notified by Harry Weaver Wednesday that the residence of the late Dr. Peters at 124 W. Franklin-st. had been entered and valuable books, including an entire set of medical books had been stolen.

Since no one lives in the house it is difficult for police to ascertain when the robbery was perpetrated.

It is thought that out-of-town talent stole the books for other valuables including silverware, bed-clothing, furniture and incidentals had not been touched.

CONGRESS AND HOOVER WAGE RELIEF FIGHT

Senate, House Smart Under Rebuke and Criticism of President.

PASS MEASURES

Increase of Taxes Is Center of Controversy.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A blundering Congress, smarting under presidential rebuke and showering criticism on the White House, went forward today with its own program of unemployment and agricultural distress.

The Senate and House exchanged relief measures, the Senate repealing a $110,000,000 measure passed by the house to accelerate federal construction within the House received the Senate's $30,000,000 feed, seed and food loan bill to relieve agricultural distress. The fate of the House bill was in some doubt, since the hostile senate may refuse to turn any funds over to Mr. Hoover for lump sum expenditure by the treasury department.

FACE SHOWDOWN
The Senate meanwhile faced a showdown on Mr. Hoover's declaration against any increase in taxes. A resolution, sponsored by the youthful Senator LaFollette (R) of Wisconsin would put the senate on record as favoring increased taxes for the relief of "human suffering in this emergency," despite White House influence to the contrary. "LaFollette's resolution has the endorsement of numerous Democratic leaders and may prove the old Democratic-Insurgent coalition that has battled Republican administrations for the last ten years.

The resolution read: "Whereas, millions of American citizens are in destitute circumstances due to unemployment, face privation and suffering, and whereas, the President of the United States, in a public statement has indicated that consideration for the interests of human taxpayers necessitates restriction on governmental relief measures necessary to aid the jobs and aid their dependents, now therefore,

"Be it resolved, that it is the sense of the Senate of the United States that the relief of human suffering in this emergency should take precedence over the consideration of the interests of wealthy income taxpayers."

ENDORSED BY BORAH
Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, immediately endorsed the resolution.

Borah said: "I have received heavy correspondence from all over the country insisting upon increasing income taxes especially in the higher brackets to take care of this situation. The issuance of certificates would just carry it along a period. There should be an increase in the higher brackets to prevent persons with small incomes eventually paying the bill."

The presidential declaration that much of the relief legislation sponsored on Capitol Hill represented an effort to "play politics" at the expense of human misery, merely accentuated the demands for enactment of measures not recommended by Mr. Hoover.

DIES PREPARING TO VISIT CITY

While waiting at the home of his friend George Wilson, whom he was to accompany on a business trip to this city, Jacob Bookman, 76, was stricken with heart trouble and fell dead.

TAKE that padlock off your purse

YOU may think in sealing up your purse you are protecting your individual prosperity in hoarding a reserve that will keep you until real good times come around again. Don't you realize that within that locked purse you are actually imprisoning prosperity and the scarcer will be the dollars that will come to you to store away in that purse.

Whether you are a wage-earner, a merchant or a manufacturer your income must come from what some one else is spending or consuming. People must buy the things you sell or produce or business becomes stagnant . . . the wage-earner is discharged, the merchant fails and the manufacturer ceases production for lack of replacement orders.

Where is your income coming from if every one keeps a padlock on his purse? Spending is the only media of prosperity . . . money kept in circulation is the motive power that keeps business going; keeps employment active and guarantees your personal prosperity.

All America is coming to realization of that fact now . . . awakening to the real source of depression and is entering upon a relief program of Buying so that the merchant has an outlet for his goods . . . so he can order from the manufacturer . . . so the manufacturer can employ more help to produce those goods . . . so the worker can earn more money to spend. There is no relief from depression; no return to prosperity; no solution to unemployment until buying becomes general.

The manufacturers and merchants are doing their part now to make buying an inducement and a profit to the consumers because prices now on all important commodities are down to the lowest possible levels.

WOOSTER CLUBS TO MEET THRU CENTRAL U. S. DEC. 11

The Wooster Club of Columbus will meet at the Deshler Hotel Dec. 12 to observe the tenth annual "Wooster Day".

Wooster College graduates and former students, who live in Columbus, Circleville, Delaware, Granville, Westerville, Lancaster, Grove City, Johnstown, London, Marysville, Milford Center, Mt. Sterling, Pataskani, Plain City, Pleasantville, Reynoldsburg, Sandusky, West Jefferson and other places in this section of the state, are included in the membership of the Wooster Club of Columbus.

Officers of the club are Fred Paisly, 16 E. Broad St., president; Miss Esther Boyer, 1601 Bryden Rd., vice president; Mrs. Mary D. Waltemire, 425 E. Gray St., secretary; and David Parks, Westerville, council representative.

Prof. Frank H. Cowles, head of the Latin department, will be the guest of the club. Officials are making an effort to have the parents of Wooster students from Columbus and vicinity present at the meeting.

The idea of having a "Wooster Day" annually, when Wooster College graduates, former students and friends could get together for group meetings everywhere, was started by Prof. John D. McKee, alumni secretary, in 1921.

The date, Dec. 11, is a memorable one in Wooster history. Dec. 11, 1901, fire destroyed "Old Main," often called the "Bitters Bottle," a six story building which housed the college.

Just one year later, Dec. 11, 1902, four new buildings were dedicated. These buildings are now the center of a group of 13 buildings, most of which are built of white terra cotta brick and which are erected on the main campus of Wooster College.

Nearly 2,000, Wooster graduates and former students are expected to attend the 40 meetings which will be held this year.

Personal greetings will be sent to each group from Dr. Charles F. Wishart, president of Wooster and from Prof. McKee, alumni secretary.

Members of the faculty will travel to many of the club meetings near Wooster to be the guest of the clubs and give first-hand information and news from the campus.

President Wishart will meet with the Chicago club. Prof. R. Westhafer, dean of the college, will meet with the club in Akron.

Coach L. C. Boles goes to Detroit and to Toledo; Alumni Secretary McKee will speak in chapel the morning of Dec. 11, explain "Wooster Day" and its significance to the students of the college, and then go to Canton in the evening.

PITT STARS TO PLAY ON COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—Two more stars have accepted invitations to play on the eastern football team which plays an aggregation of western players here.

New Year's day in the annual "Shrine" game, according to reports received here today. They are Charles Tully, Pittsburgh tackle and Sol Rosenzweig, Carnegie Tech end.

FEW MANAGERS ARE SATISFIED WITH OUTLOOK

Big Show Bosses Willing To Trade Any Player on Team For Improvement.

BY LES CONKIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—After conversing with various managers attending the baseball meetings here, one gets the impression that mightily few big leaguers are sure of their jobs next season. While most of the leaders contemplate few changes, a lot of them are ready to trade almost every member of their hired help in an effort to get out of the luck of 1931.

Bill McKee, manager of the Boston Braves, declared he was ready to swap any member of his 1930 aggregation except Wallie Berger, his big home run hitter. McKee is not spoofing, for he did not hesitate to send Bob Smith, one of his best pitchers, to the Cubs recently in order to acquire some promising talent.

HOWLEY BEGINS

Dan Howley, the Cincinnati manager, who came in for a lot of paning from the disappointed Burghers at Redland Field last season, is looking for young blood. Desperate Dan had not bones about announcing he would sell any man on the club. He started the ball rolling recently by acquiring Mickey Heath from Hollywood to replace Pat Crawford at first base.

Even Roger Peckinbaugh, who turned out a good team at Cleveland last season, told the writer without batting an eye that he would not hesitate to swap any member of the Indians if the deal would benefit the Indians. But if Peck ever lets Wes Ferrell go, we can't imagine him daring to go back to Cleveland without the protection of a detachment of the National Guard. Nor is there much chance of Alton being traded.

Bill Killefer, pilot of the St. Louis Browns, said there were six regulars and four rookie intruders who were sure to be with the Browns next spring, but that the remainder of the roster was available as trading material. Bill will not part with Goose Goslin, his home run ace; Oscar Melillo, second baseman; Catcher Rick Ferrell, Ralph Kress or Pitchers Stewart and Blacholder.

KILLIFER READY

Killefer has several trades in mind but was sitting on the fence awaiting the outcome of the conference today between the majors and the minors on the draft question. If an agreement is reached, he and other managers will be free to negotiate for minor league stars, and many of the proposed trades between major league clubs will be called off.

1. The deadlock remains unbroken and the big league pilots are forced to trade among themselves, some wholesale swapping may ensue instead of the usual three or four deals.

Grapevine reports whispered of a deal involving the Giants. McGraw wants two pitchers and an outfielder and might trade Housh, Genewich, Kullis and Pruett to get them.

Brooklyn has plenty of cash and Flawits, Pincich, Slade and Hendrick as trading material. The Robins would like to get Ed Brandt from the Braves but McKee needs all the pitchers he has.

Muddy Ruel, Washington's veteran catcher, could be used by the Yankees or Cleveland. It is believed the Yanks would part with Outfielder Harry Aice or Pitcher Henry Johnson.

The Athletics would part with two veterans, Miller and Perkins. And Donnie Bush of the White Sox announced last week that he would trade anybody except Reynolds, Lyons and Thomas. Mark Keough of Detroit is on the block.

Pitchers Rhem and Haines of the Cardinals might be traded, but Sam Breadon is not so eager to let Bottomley go now that Collier's, Sunny Jim's understudy from Rochester, is laid up in the hospital.

It had been understood that Pinky Whitney, third baseman of the Phillies, was on the market, but according to word from Philadelphia, Shotton is "all set." He must be getting his baseball mixed with his bridge.

BUENOS AIRES.—A dinner and ball in honor of President Urubau and Mme. Urubau given by United States Ambassador Biss and Mrs. Biss formally inaugurated the new American embassy here purchased by the United States government. The highest officials in the Argentine attended.

TOLEDO TOSSERS GIVEN RELEASES

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 10.—Simultaneous with the withdrawal of the Cleveland team from the American basketball league, the decision of Manager Ed Cannon of the Toledo professional cage squad to release all of his players with the exception of Davey Banks, forward, was reported here today.

Cannon announced that he planned to form a new team, and that he had several deals in the making. Some of the released players will be traded, he announced. The releases will take effect Dec. 11.

Members of the team involved in Cannon's dismissal are Cook, Cunningham, Gil Ely, Chuck Gillum, Len Sheppard, Red Brandes and Pip Koehler.

Unpopular
POSTMASTER General Brown has developed a genius for saying the wrong thing or doing the right thing at the wrong time. President Hoover had to stop him from dumping overboard a lot of human ballast at a time when the great need of the nation is employment. Still smarting from that rebuff, he runs up against a congressional stone wall with his scheme to add a half-cent to the first-class postal rate.
Members of the house committee on postoffices and post roads venture the prediction that the postal head will not be able to find a representative who will sponsor such a measure. The senate is not less hostile.
Would Mr. Brown kill the goose that lays the golden eggs? First-class mail nets his department a nice profit of $80,000,000 a year because the postal rate is so low that it encourages wide correspondence among the people and in business. If the rate is raised, the surprising experience with the two cent post card rate of a few years ago will be duplicated. The department discovered then that people skid cards because of the penny savings.
Is it good business to tax the service that pays best? If it were, it would be about as popular as would abolition of rural delivery because it is not self-supporting.
It would be unfortunate if these reverses were to discourage the postmaster general from continuing his search for a panacea for postal deficits. Under less dis-tressful circumstances his efforts might have won popular support.

A kick tax has been described as a place where nobody feels a pain in the neck if somebody inherits $4,000 and acts modest about it.

Power of Traditions
In Samuel Butler's "Erewhon," a statesman of prescience succeeded in getting passed an act to the effect that no statue of a public man or woman should remain unbroken for more than 50 years, unless at the end of that time a jury of 24 men, taken at random from the streets, pronounced in favor of its being allowed a second 50 years of life.
Wasted legislative effort should a statute would be in this day and age. Mary a statue would be busted in a century except under abnormal conditions, such as the frenzy of war or the emotionalism of revolution.
Though relatively young as nations go, the United States is not less addicted to traditions, institutions and customs than the oldest provinces of the Old World. And statues are traditions in stone or bronze, just as laws are traditions on paper.
Preserve we must the traditions
in stone.
Preserve we must the traditions,
customs, laws, statues, opinions and myths of yesteryear, though they may seem as dust to our knowing eyes. To destroy them would be iconoclasm or, worse, sacrilege. Whosoever or whatsoever one generation shall set above the commonplace no one in posterity shall lower from the pedestal of fame, though that fame has been exposed to posterity as undesired.

This inherent reactionism is carried to the heights of absurdity by the stubborn refusal of legislatures and the people to repeal vicious or unpopular laws merely because they are hoary with age.

There is a suspicion in some quarters that the adjective in "bull market" also describes the talk about returning prosperity.

Quest
RACES have left their heralde devices, so to speak, upon the walls of the past in every country of the earth, and then passed out of existence and largely out of knowledge. No anthropological or archeological evidence of the earliest existence of man upon the planet has been a conviction as to the origin of man, in respect either to place or manner.
The matter of fixing on the cradle of the race is of speculative interest more than it is a question for scientific ascertainment. But as long as it is a question, America has a right to put forward its claims for habitation in eras of remote antiquity, even if the cradle of the race may not be found in this hemisphere. That cradle has been a quest time and again by ever fresh discoveries of the relics of

GIRL UNAFRAID BY GLADYS JOHNSON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.
Life to pretty Ardeth Carroll meant working in a shop, an unhappy home with her aunt, and the courtship of Neil Burke, to whom marriage would mean a continuance of her drab existence.
When fate in the guise of the socially prominent Jeanette Parker, offers her the charge of a shop she is opening, Ardeth accepts. Her happiness knows no bounds when she meets her idol, Ken Gleason, often seen with Cecile, Jeanette's younger sister. Ardeth and Ken see much of each other. Announcement of Ken's engagement to Cecile stuns Ardeth. Ken denying his engagement, explains it is his mother's wish that he marry Cecile. He confesses his love for Ardeth. Unable to oppose his mother, Ken hopes to win her approval of his marriage to Ardeth. Neil quarrels with Ardeth about Ken.
Ardeth leaves home. In spite of Ken's love for her, Ardeth fears Cecile's influence.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.
CHAPTER XVII.
SOMETIMES she would wake in the night, stifled. Her heart thumping against her ribs until it shook her tense body.
Unbearable depression dragging her down, drowning her in depths of aching dreariness. There was no hope or joy in the world; there was not even Ken.
Was it a dream which brought this mood? she wondered wildly.
Or was some power watching her?
But in the morning, when the sun gilded the chimney tops and the sparrows wrangled happily on the roof, it was gone. Curtains blowing in on the morning breeze.
Another golden day leading to Ken. Oh, life was sweet!
One Saturday night toward the end of October she waited for him in the empty shop. Jeanette had left early in the day for a weekend party. Ah-Ling had gathered the last round of teacups, emptied the last tin tray, and had departed for her Chinatown home, a jaunty incongruous little figure with green silk trousers flapping under her smart American sport coat.
As she waited, Ardeth slipped into a mood of pensive happiness.
Always sensitive to beauty, she noticed how the low rays of the Autumn sun striking through the window held a copper tone. It fell richly on the lustrous silks of Mandarin coats—set a pigeon-blood clove to glow like a ruby—made a glory out of an ambersticked fan. The room breathed of incense and perfume. And suddenly there was something about this inanimate beauty which stifled the girl. Intolerable sadness creeping over her, so that she put on her wraps and went outside to stand in the dying sunlight, sniffing the live salt wind.

Fear and Anger.
An hour later the outlines of the high buildings were blurred with twilight. The crowds of workers had departed from Grand Avenue, but Ardeth still lingered in the doorway of the shop, fear and anger battling in her heart.
As the hand of her wrist watch went slowly around the dial again hension flooded Ardeth's mind.
Imagination persisted in painting accidents—Ken's car had collided with another—he was hurt—wanting her—Reason scornfully thrust this aside. Oh, that was absurd! Women always borrowed trouble! Calamity Jane—that's what Ken would call her.
He'd been detained at the office.
Any minute now he'd come about the corner.
She grew self-conscious at the placeness of passersby. If anyone saw her, she knew she'd look silly!
With cold fingers she fitted the key to the lock and re-entered the shop.
Surprisingly dark in here after the gray light of the street. She sat down quietly on a tabourette facing the window, but after a moment she found herself pacing the floor.
Up the soft, thick carpet of the outer shop... into the smokierie back again with nervous, measured steps, following a winding path which dodged couches and screen and teakwood tabourettes.

Her nerves were taut. Somehow symbolic, this restless waiting in the dark. Why did she always have this fear where Ken was concerned? However lurking under the sweet security of their love, Afraid... She was afraid...
A little whimper broke from her.
"Oh, Ken—please..." The sound of her own voice speaking in the shadowy room jolted her back to reason.
Here! This was silly! Ridiculous to be carrying on like this. She would not strain toward the window. She'd go back and wait for him to phone or come.
Determinedly calm she walked into the the smokierie, pulled a lamp cord and sat down under its mellow glow to wait. Suddenly she remembered that this was where Cecile usually sat when she came down here. Abruptly Ardeth stood up, eyes dilated, lips parted.
Memory was stirring. A brief happening that afternoon which she had paid little attention to at the time. Mary Eastwood calling after Phyllis Hawkins as she was leaving. "Of course you'll be at Cecile's dinner tonight at Tai's, Phil?"
Woman's Intuition.
With one of those intuitive flashes which leaps the hurdles of reason and argument, Ardeth knew that Ken was not coming. While she waited for him here in the lonely shop he was with Cecile in the beach cafe.
Jealousy tearing her with hot fingers. Anger shaking through her. And a sick self-contempt.
Oh, what a fool—what a poor blind fool she had been! How they would laugh—Neil—Aunt Stel—if they could see her now!
Aunt Stel's derisive cackle: "He's like many another young fellow—takin' his fun with a poor girl before he marries a rich one!"
"Oh!" She covered her face with her hands. "Oh!"
Pulling on her hat regardless.

AT THE CLIFTONA
That when love is fleeing away there is usually some reason is the premise which runs through the plot of Cecil E. De Mille's "Madam Satan," a spectacular comedy with music which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will open Wednesday at the Cliftona Theatre.
Bob and Angela Brooks (Reginald Denny and Kay Johnson) are beginning to grow apart. Angela is a perfect wife who runs a very comfortable household, but Bob craves warmer affection and less efficiency.
Almost too late, Angela discovers that Bob is becoming interested in the bizarre "Trixie," a vaudeville performer, played by Lillian Roth. She resolves to fight for Bob's love with same weapons employed by the "other woman." An interesting episode occurs in Trixie's bedroom, with Bob, Angela, Trixie and Bob's friend, Jimmy Wade (Roland Young) as participants.

In all the walks of life there is probably none which affords more sympathetic material appealing to almost every type of person than the stage. The allure of Broadway and the "bright lights" to youngsters from every section of the country; the disappointing grind; the sudden "break" in which the unknown blooms into a celebrity;

HUNTERS DEMAND REVISION OF ANTIQUATED GAME LAWS

Complete revision of antiquated game laws in every state of the Union, is the purpose of a crusade which will be inaugurated next year by organizations of hunters and sportsmen throughout the United States, under the leadership of a foundation called More Game Birds in America.

The powerful support which can be rallied for this plan is indicated by the fact that nearly 7,000,000 hunting licenses were granted last year for sums varying from one dollar to $100 each. During the past five years the demand for hunting licenses has increased at the rate of 250,000 annually.

The hunters do not oppose conservation of wild game, -- on the other hand they insist that many of the existing conservation laws defeat their own ends. They maintain that the adoption of uniform laws on a more liberal basis will result, as they have in England, in a ten-fold increase in the number of game birds, partly through the encouragement of breeding and partly through the suppression of vermin which prey upon wild life.

"It's not only the sportsman, but the farmer also, who is being cheated by our illogical and antiquated game laws," declares Walter Davenport in Collier's, outlining the purposes of the new demand for codification. "And, we, at all, the game suffers. Nobody profits by these laws,--they represent an immense national waste. In fact, conservation in many states has come to mean extermination."

Not until our wild game was so near to extinction that one could become familiar with it only by visits to the zoo, did America decide to do anything about it. Then, with the duck and the deer, the partridge and the plover, and all the rest of the wild herds and flocks close to extinction, what with heedless shooting and lack of effort to assist the birds in their brave but futile fight against vermin, came great talk of restocking and restricting, preserving and rehabilitating.

"The government, hotly seconded by a score of unofficial organizations, urged upon the states the adoption of codes protecting what remained of America's wild life. "In consequence, we have forty-eight amazing codes of laws, one for each state, the purpose of which, loosely speaking, is the protection and preservation of game-fish, flesh and fowl. They overlap, they contradict, they hold forth at mystifying length on game which no longer exists. So few were scientific that until very recently they have been little more than sentimental flubdub.

"Thousands of laws were passed near to extinction that one could become familiar with it only by visits to the zoo, did America decide to do anything about it. Then, with the duck and the deer, the partridge and the plover, and all the rest of the wild herds and flocks close to extinction, what with heedless shooting and lack of effort to assist the birds in their brave but futile fight against vermin, came great talk of restocking and restricting, preserving and rehabilitating.

SERMONET
Following is a sermonette which Rev. Harold E. Newman of the A. M. E. church wishes to have printed. Psalm 95:7 Today, if ye will hear Voice.

TODAY
With each day you are given fresh from the hand of God, the dawn of a new life clear and bright as the sun that gave birth to the morning. Each day is a new jewel from the crown of time shining and untarnished--your jewel from which to coin love, happiness and harmony. Grasp and use each precious minute of its rapidly passing hours, reach out for its every joy as the leper reached for the healing garment of Jesus.

Every short moment contains limitless possibilities for good limitless love, limitless accomplishments, limitless and unexpressed creative energy the fruit of the inspiration sown by the sacrifice and unselfishness of the myriad martyrs, soldiers, thinkers, inventors, and adventurers who dared and died to make this day more gloriously perfect for your enjoyment. The blood of a million strong pure hearts that bled for posterity cries out from the crimson clouds of the early dawn, for every man, woman and child to so use the blessings of this day that their blood shall not have been shed in vain. Every ray of sunshine that lifts the blanket of night from the hills of to-day can tell of a thousand true hearts that have bled. A thousand strong spirits that have fled on the altar of ambition and the cross of truth that the flag of liberty might fly higher and the light of love might shine brighter on this day which God has given you for your own. Use every shining second well not selfishly, but thoughtfully, energize every moment of the day with the dynamic love of your whole being. Shed on all around you the love light of a thousand smiles. With the clear breath of morning, God breathes love into your soul, and with the last star of dawn, He seals the record of your past. Bright is the smile of the recording Angel in Heaven, as he closes for aye each morning, the record of your yesterdays, and writes in letters of purest gold your name at the head of a new clear page white, and as you drink in God's love message sent on the ethereal wings of the early dawn, close the ears of your soul to the gossip of the past and know that in your face shines the light of God's love and within you burns the fire of limitless ambition dauntless courage and God given ability, energy and will, to accomplish all things great and small.
